BIG FIGHT EXPECTED

Rebels Reported To Be Advanc-ing on Havana.

COMMANDED BY COMES AND MACEO

Covernment Generals Announce Two Engagements with Insurgents, Resulting Disastrously to the Latter. Towns Burned by Rebels.

Madrid, March 11.—A dispatch to the Impaccial from Havana says that the rebels under Gomez and Maceo are advancing towards liavana. From the position of the Spanish troops a serious conflict is expected.

Rebel Defeats Reported.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) Havana, March. 11.—Col. Vicuna reports an engagement with insurgents at Pedrosa, province of Matanzas, in which fourteen of the rebels were killed. The loss of the troops was only one wounded. Gen. Barges reports that Gen. Lachambre has returned from extensive operations in the vicinity of Songo and Ramon de las Yaguas, province of Santiago de Cuba. He had constant engagements with the forces of Jose Maceo. He burned an extensive rebel camp, together with a hospital. In one engagement the rebels left twelve dead, and in another seven dead, including Capt. Zayas. The troops had one guerrilla killed and an officer and three soldiers seriously and six slightly wounded.

The police secury papers and bonds of recent date tenerals Mella, Alzpursa and Moreno sailed for Spain last night. Rebels burned the town of Quivican, province of Havana, and Union de los Reyes, province of Matanzas, Monday. They have also burned the town of Martines, in the province of Piner del Rio, and a railroad train near Cunanayagua, in the province of Matanzas.

J. FRANK CLARK

The Address to Gen. Weyler. Key West, Fla, March 11.-The significance of the address which was presented to Gen. Weyler by the citizens of Havana protesting against the action of congress, and which has just been received here, appears to be greater than has been appreciated, as the signatures give it every appearance of representing citizens of high standing in Cuba. The names include all the representative bodies of Havana, the political and social clubs, including the Union club, the most exclusive social club of Cuba; all the conductors of newspapers of that city, including La Discusion, El Pais, and La Lugha, exclusively Cuban papers of the home rule party and of republican ideas of government, and also the names of Messrs. Galvez and Montoro, generally known and revered by Cubans. The address is as follows: "The greatest indignation has been felt by the inhabitants of the island of Cuba, without distinction of political parties or nationality, on hearing of the resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the United States recognizing and giving, without regard to the law of nati ns, followed by all the civilized people of the world, the rights of belligerency to indisciplinated hordes composed of adventurers of all races, of foreigners, bandits, and deluded or insane persons that cannot represent without offendling even those Cubans who desire the independence from Spain. The people of Cuba wherein all that is intelligent, civilized, laborious and rich protest and condemn an insurrection powerful only to hang peaceful citizens, burn the fields, and destroy undefended villages.

Weyler Unjustly Slandered. "The undersigned wish to have it emphasized now, before your excellency, the worthy representative of the Spanish fatherland, unjustly slandered at the same time with your excellency, by a congress that probably could not find better arguments to adopt resolutions in which is dealt such a great injustice to a nation to whom this continent owes the benefit of culture and the island of Cuba the state of progress and liberty and the riches that have made her to be envied by the world. We renew to your excellency our loyalty without conditions ish flag, and we pledge to maintain it with our lives and over in order to maintain upright the Span-

"United States Against Spain,"

Madrid, March 11.-The cabinet, in face of Captain-General Weyler's recent dispatch that no more troops were needed in Cuba, has decided to call to the colors 60,000 more reserves, so that they may be in readiness for dispatch required. A pamphlet entitled "The to the island if their services should be United States Against Spain" has been published in this city. Its author is believed to be Senor Valera, sometime Spanish minister at Washington. The work dilates upon the injustice of the American congress toward Spain, and predicts that there will be a revulsion f popular feeling in the United States hen the truth becomes known. The riter says he expects a favorable outAmerican women, and declares that he admires the American men, who, he adds, are amiable and hospitable unless they are blinded by self-esteem.

Gov. Griggs Dined.

New York, March 11.-The republican club of this city held its regular mouthly subscription dinner last night, about fifty covers being laid. The guest of the evening was Gov. John W. Griggs of New Jersey, who made a brief speech on the outlook in the Garden state of a republican victory this fall

MUST QUIT TALKING.

Senators Remind the Spanish Minister

That His Conduct Is Unbecoming. Washington, March 11 .- One of the principal speeches in the senate to-day will be delivered by Mr. Hoar, rep., Mass., on his motion to postpone further consideration of the conference report on the Cuban resolutions until April 6 and to direct the committee on foreign relations to report in the meantime the facts on which the resolutions were justified. The action of the Spanish minister in correcting or qualifying, through the public press, statements made in the senate on the subject of the war in Cuba, and particularly on the subject of Gen. Weyler's purposes and character, was made the ground work of a question of personal privilege by Senator Lodge, rep., Mass. The Massachusetts senator protested against any diplomatic representative using the newspapers of the United States to criticise senators for words spoken in debate, and intimated that in any other country a foreign minister, who should be guilty of such a violation of propriety, would be sent home. Mr. De Lome's action was rather palliated by Mr. Gray, dem., Del., although he admitted that it was a technical violation of diplomatic usage. Mr. Teller, rep., Col., was less benignantly inclined. Under the circumstances he would not, if he were president, send the Spanish minister home, but he would suggest to him that a repetition of the offense would necessitate his leaving the country.

Alleged Fillbuster.

Charleston, S. C., March 11.—The alleged filibuster Commodore took out clearance papers for Tampa, Fla., at the custom house yesterday and moved out into the stream. A large crowd of people, among whom were two Pinkerton detectives, watched her. As she dropped down the harbor, she was cheered by the people on the docks. Her commander had stated that she was going to sea at once, but she did not do so. She steamed down the Cooper river until off the battery, where she dropped anchor and remained for several hours. Her officers say that she will not go out until tonight, but it is expected she will slip out of the harbor during the afternoon.

BIG BEQUEST TO YALE,

Mrs. Sloan Will Lose $200,000 When She Again Weds.

New Haven, Conn., March 11.—It is announced at Yale that the university would receive $200,000 under peculiar conditions. When Thomas C. Sloan of New York died four years ago he left that amount to his widow on condition that should she marry again the money was to go to Yale. The formal engagement of Mrs. Sloan has just been announced to the New York society man, Mr. Barelay, and it is stated that the wedding will take place in April. This, apparently, leaves Yale a clean title to the $200,000. It is thought that part of the money will be devoted to erecting the new dormitory at Yale. Secretary Dexter of the corporation said last night, relative to the conditional gift, that he understood it would I conditionally go to Yale, but he declined to discuss it further.

Finally they found her asleep in the cellar with nothing but a piece of cloth to cover her and her arms and legs gnawed by rats. Agent King was notified and caused the arrest.

Progress of the Appropriation Bill New York's Radical Measure Soon in House Committee.

MORE WARSHIPS ARE CONTEMPLATED

The Number Not Yet Decided Upon, Members of the Committee Differing. Principal Provisions of the Bill as It Now Stands.

Washington, March 11.-The house committée on naval affairs has still under consideration the naval appropriation bill. While the measure has not been completed, enough of its provisions are known to give an abstract of it, approximating the shape in which it will be presented to the house. The important question of increasing the navy has not yet been agreed upon, but it is quite certain that a number of battleships and torpedo boats will be authorized. Members of the committee differ as to what this increase will be. Some favor six battleships and fifteen torpedo boats, while others want four battleships and from twenty to thirty torpedo boats. The bill will carry an appropriation outside of any authorized increase in the navy of about $28,500,000. As the bill now stands its principal provisions are as

The track is of boards and in poor condition. Elkes was paced every half mile by a fresh team, which gave a hot pace and kept the lad busy. He showed up in fine shape at the close of the race and on the last lap made a sport that was wonderful. He was apparently as fresh as when he started.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY RAINES LIQUOR BILL

To Become a Law.

PASSED THE SENATE LAST NIGHT

All Amendments Voted Down, and None To Be Accepted by the Assembly. May Reach the Governor on Saturday Next.

Albany, March 11 .- The success of the advocates of the Raines liquor tax bill in forcing the measure through the senate last night under cloture rule will undoubtedly be followed by its passage in the assembly next Friday, the plan now agreed upon by the republican majority. No amendments, it is understood, are to be allowed, and the bill will probably reach the governor for signature on Saturday, without any change from its present shape. The final discussion on the measure in the senate was very animated at times. When Senator Lexow had closed his speech in defense of the bill Senator Ellsworth said he proposed to move to close the debate. Senators Cantor and Gray sought recognition. Senator Ellsworth said that full debate had been allowed. Amendments were offered by Senator Guy providing that special deputies reside in the locality in which they serve, and that the 23d and 24th wards of New York city be considered

All Amendments Voted Down.

Debate was closed by a vote of 34 to 14. the democrats in the negative. Senator Cantor's amendment that the cities retain the whole tax was lost-18 to 31. A vote was taken on Senator Cantor's amendment that separate beer and wine licenses be issued. Lost, 30 to 17. Coggeshall, G. A. Davis and Pavey with the democrats. Senator Guy's amendment to designate the 23d and 24th wards of New York to come under the town license fees was lost viva voce. Senator Guy's amendment that the deputies be residents of the localities in which they serve, was lost -35 to 15, Senator Pavey with the democrats; Coggeshall not roting. An amendment offered by Senator McCarren, allowing all night licenses for places of amusement at an additional charge of $150, was lost-32 to 14, Sie bert voting with the democrats, Coggeshall, Guy and Wiemann not voting. Another amendment of Senator Mc-Carren's providing that clubs be not licensed, was lost-14 to 35. Senator Cantor moved to refer the bill back to the committee with instructions to strike out the enact clause. Lost, 18

The Bill Passed.

The final reading of the bill was then had and roll call ordered. The senators each had five minutes to explain their votes. Senator Abeara said the bill discriminated in favor of the rich against the poor. The people would repay the republicans next fall. Senator McNulty spoke, saving the most obnoxious element of the bill was that 1,200 saloons in Brooklyn would go out of business, causing a loss of much money. At 6.15 p. m., the bill was passed by a vote of 31 to 18. G. A. Davie, Pavey, Coggeshall and Siebert voted with the fourteen democratic senators in the negative. Senator Wieman, republican, of Brooklyn was

PEGDOT'S GREAT SCHEME

A Plan to Do Philanthropists Who Have Doubts.

It Was the Result of an Abundant Supply of Food and a Great Scarcity of Drink-More Happiness in Panhandler's Row.

Panhandlers' row has a new method of outwitting practical philanthropy, which is not the variety for which the panhandlers sigh. It is the invention of Pegdot, whose wooden leg is one of the stand bys of that part of Park row which used to be called Chatham street, and its mother is necessity. For some weeks and luck and Pegdot had strangers, and, though he had been more than well supplied with food, drink had been very scarce, a peculiar combination of circumstances wherefrom he evolved his great scheme. About the period of the merry Yule-tide Pegdot's wooden mcmber slumped its irregular way into the Imperial restaurant and cafe, where the royalty of the row is fed at prices ranging from ten cents for a half stew up to fifteen cents for an extra steak. Know ing the visitor's reputation of old, the cashier, who also acts as bouncer, cast a glance behind him to make sure that his club was in easy reach and said:

"Buy yer chips here er y' can't git inter this game. "Ah, Jim, good afternoon," said l'eg, with the easy elegance for which he was famed. "I dropped in here to have a little talk with you. I've got a little idea I'd like--" manded the cashier, putting strenuous emphasis upon the set price of the Imperial's justly celebrated table d'hote

With an airy wave of his hand Peg dismissed the question.

"What I came to see you about is this," he explained. "I have thought out a little scheme-"

"I'm onter yer little schemes. Y' don't go on the outside of any tabble dote meals here on the stren'th of a divvy yer goin' ter get t'morrow."

"Not at all," replied Peg, with dignity, though an expression of pain flitted over his features. "I have no such intention, I assure you."

"Ner y' don't slide in on me like y' did w'en y' give me th' song an' dance about Shinny Miggs settlin' fer yer grub, an' then put in yer three square meals with Shinny, beside yer puttin' in more than he cud pay fer on his own hook, let alone squarin' fer youse."

"If you are unwilling to let bygones be bygones," began Pegdot, with gathering wrath on his brow; "if you're looking for trouble and won't listen to a gent who wants to explain something to you—"

A minatory wave of the wooden leg suggested the conclusion, and the cashier-bouncer hastily stepped back, for Pegdot had been known to throw himself on his back and rotate from his own axis with such effect that those who encountered the wooden leg in its flight went to the hospital in an ambulance.

"Don't git google-eyed, Peg," said he, in conciliatory tones, at the same time laying his hand on the emergency club. "Put some ice down yer collar, an' sing yer tra-la."

Thus adjured the veteran panhandler propped himself up against the desk, and Jim hastily closed the cash drawer, an involuntary tribute to his character which in no wise discomfited the visitor. "You observed me in here last week several times, Jim," began Peg.

"Yep," was the answer. "Y' was here till I t'ought y' muster give up drinkin' fer a livin' an' taken ter eatin'."

"You may also have observed," proceeded the visitor, "that each time I was brung here by a gent who paid for my dinner, and then went away."

"Y' had a good t'ing in tow every turn outer th' box," assented Jim. "Four of those last week," said Pegdot, reflectively, "and I couldn't touca one of them for a cent. Nothing but meals. Jim, do you understand why to a square?" "Reputation of th' restyrant," said Jim, glancing proudly at an Aubrey-Beardsleyish sign informing a hungry public through the medium of writing letters in sanguinary hues that "punkin pie" was to be had for "three sents a finer. Now my scheme is to get ahead of these philanthropists this way. Some gent that writes letters to the papers wrote about how no real, firstclass philanthropist would give money to a street beggar, but only take him to a joint and buy him a meal. I wish I had that mug here," and the wooden leg described an exclamation point in the air. "Since then I ain't had a thing but grub, grub, grub, till it gives me the jiggers to look at a bill of fare." "Wotcher goin' ter do about it?" inquired the other in unconscious paraphrase of a historic personage.

"I'm going to do the philanthropist," returned Pegdot, "and you're going to chip in and push it along. Now, looka-here, what do you think I want of your meals?"

"Not much; you want the ready ter soak away inter the bank with enough lef' out fer a ball an' a bench all night at the Rest."

To this summing up of his ambitions the panhandler agreed with a nod. He leaned over and said confidenually:

"Every time I run in a good thing here the joint gets the biz, don't it?" "Sure."

"And I get nothing."

"Y' get yer grub." "Grub be darned," said Pegdot, with great emphasis. "I want cash; that's what I want. Understand?"

"Yep. Keep that stilt o' yourn glued ter 'th' floor, will yer?" "Here's the scheme: I run in the guy and he pays here and gets out. I sit down, but I don't order, and as quick as he gets out I get up without eating anything But you got the 13 cents for the grub. You give me the ten cents and keep the three cents. You's the three cents to the good, and you get it for nothing, for I don't take a bite. Under-

No audible reply came from the other, but he thrust his face forward, drew up the corner of his mouth in an extraordinary grimace, winked vio lently, and then waggled his hand under his chin. That was all.

"Oh! well," said the inventor of the scehme, somewhat discomfited, "I ain't mean; say eight cents to me and the nickel to you.'

"D'yer take this joint fer a Chris'mas tree?" inquired Jim, coolly. "Youse gimme seven cents an' take six; see?"

"Do I get a bowl of stew thrown in?" "That goes," said Jim, and the deal was concluded.

The very next day in came Peg with a philanthropist in tow. He was a young philanthropist, able bodied and welldressed, and Peg tipped a wink to his friend Jim.

"Pay here, gent," said Jim. "All right; one meal. How much?" said the young man.

"T'irteen cents,' replied the cashier, and the philanthropist, putting down the money, followed Peg's lead into the place, which was more than Peg had reckoned on. "You wouldn't sit down here, sir," he expostulated. "A gent like you don't want to be seen in a place like

"I guess none of my acquaintances are likely to see me here," returned the young man, easily. "Go ahead and

"But it ain't a fit place for you," insisted Peg. "It may not look so bad, but it ain't so clean as it might be, and the board of health's been after it. Only poor unfortunates like me eats

"Don't apologize for the place," was the reply. "It isn't so bad as it might Seeing nothing else for it, Peg ordered his dinner and set to work upon it; but it was slow work. Six beers and a couple of whiskies that morning had gone far toward ruining his appetite, and it seemed as if every swallow must be his last. In despair he made a final attempt.

"Say, Mike, what did they do with that hobo that was took with typhus in here yesterday?" he inquired of a waiter, winking to make Mike understand he was to back up the statement. But Mike wasn't quick enough.

"Typhus, me eye!" he said, disdainfully. "Ain't yuse had de snakes enough times t' know 'em when y' see 'em? Say, yer wooden-toed ol' soak, I'll make a fried egg outer yer face if yer screw it up at me dat way agin." "I don't care to take any unnecessary chances," said Peg's philanthropist. "In case it might have been typhus, I'll take precautions," and pouring some vinegar into a saucer he scattered it about, whereupon Mike immediately put down a two-cent check for "extras."

It was a hard struggle for Peg to down that meal, but the young man was watching him closely, and he had to do it. All things come to an end, but the meal's end was very near being Peg's end; at least he felt that way. It filled him up till he was too inert to beg, so he went to the Rest and hibernated over night on the strength of two drinks purchased with a dime he had saved from the night before.

While there he perfected his plan and unfolded it to his friend Jim as soon as he could get to him. The result was that a new bill of fare was specially prepared for any philanthropist Peg might run in who wanted to see him feed. On this special bill regular dinner was 25 cents instead of 13, and all dishes were double their ordinary price. Thereafter when the clump of Peg's wooden member was heard approaching Jim handily turned the price mottoes to the wall and thrust forward the fake bill. They divided even on the extra price.

Since his invention Peg has been prospering greatly. His only grief is that he couldn't copyright the scheme, for his chief rival, "Fishball Jenkins," who poses as a one-armed veteran, with the lost arm strapped under his waistcoat, has imitated the idea, and is running a cooperative business with one of the other Row restaurents. Panhandlers' row is a bad place for practical philanthropy nowadays. --N Y. Sun.

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual dis-ease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all rep-

THE AFRICAN TROUBLE.

Causes Which Led to the Invasion of the Transvaal

The Foreigners Had Much Reason to Be Dissatisfied with the Boer Government-Some Reforms Aircady Under Way.

While public attention has been excited for several weeks past over the Transvaal invasion few have paused to inquire what the trouble is all about. The independence of the Transvaul as a distinct republic was recognized by the English government as long ago as 1852. The recognition, however, carried with it some kind of a claim of suzerainty which was supposed to prevent the Boers' government entering into any foreign alliance or treaty without the knowledge and consent of Great Britain. In 1880 the British tried to assert their supposed authority in a way that the Boers did not like. When it was resisted resort was had to force of arms, with the result that England was compelled to withdraw its troops entirely from Transvaal territory. In 1881 another recognition of the independence of the Transvaal republic was wrung from Great Britain.

The population of the Transvaal is about 800,600, but not more than ten per cent. of this number is white. Of the white population, what are known as Uitlanders constitute the large majority. British settlers form more than one-half of these Uitlanders. It is they who are really at the bottom of the present disturbance. One of the sections of the Transvaal constitution provides that none but Boers shall have any share in the government of the republic, and that the Dutch language shall be taught exclusively in the schools. At the same time 92 per cent. or thereabouts, of the taxes levied for the support of the government is assessed against the Uitlanders, though they are allowed no voice in the government of the country.

Since the mining boom set in Uitlanders have been swarming into the Transvaal at the rate of 2.000 or so a month Rich gold and silver mines abound in the territory, and Johannesburg, where the trouble at this time is centered, is in the very heart of the mining region. The new arrivals among the Uitlanders naturally want their children to study the English language, but there is no school in the republic where English is taught, and, what is more, the government will not allow one to be established. The newcomers proposed to club together and organize and support one at their own expense, but the government sat down on the project. The Uitlanders appealed to Dr. L. S. Jameson, the administrator in Mashonaland of the British South African company, and he undertook to invade the Transvaal with an army of 900 soldiers. The disastrous ending of the expedition has caused no end of worry to the English government, but has not utterly failed of its purpose. According to the latest reports President Kruger evinces a disposition to make concessions to the Uitlanders, who may not only get their schools but be allowed a voice in the affairs of the government.

A GRATEFUL STATESMAN.

Li Hung Chang and the Doctor Who Dressed Bis Wound.

It will be remembered that when Li Hung Chang was shot and wounded by a Japanese fanatic at Shemonosaki, at the time he was negotiating there the treaty of peace, a celebrated Japanese surgon, Dr. Sato, was immediately sent by the emperor of Japan to look after the aged and unfortunate statesman. Dr. Sato is a great scholar and one of the most distinguished pupils and followers of the late Pasteur. He took the greatest interest in his distinguished patient, and cared for him for nights and days, with the result that Li Hung Chang soon recovered his health. The two men learned to admire and respect each other, and a true and sound friendship now exists between them. The emperor of China and Li Hung Chang having forwarded some very valuable presents to Dr. Sato, the latter sent a letter of thanks, to which the great Chinese statesman has just made the following answer:

"DEAR FRIEND:When I was wounded at Shemonosaki you were so good as to visit me, and by your exceptional skill to cure me of my injury. Such was your profi-ciency in your art that I was surprised to see my wound heal in a little more than ten days. My gratitude to you is so pro-found that words cannot adequately express it.
"You have now placed me in a fresh obligation by favoring me with an epistle overflowing with sentiments of the warmest friendship. In it you acknowledge the receipt of the things forwarded to you through the kindness of Plenipotentiary Ito. Out of respect to my imperial master you have been so kind as to say that these trifling presents will be preserved by you as a treasure. At the same time you are pleased to express thanks to me, which I do not at all deserve. Since my return home I have kept very quiet, and my health and spirits have steadily improved, so they are now in a normal con-dition. Even a rainy season lasting fully a month did not produce the slightest pain in the part where I was wounded. I beg you, therefore, to be at ease about my wound, especially as I mean to take all possible care of my health.

"Your country abounds with good physicians, but a proficient like yourself is not only too rarely found in the east, but also is equal to any even in the west. A good physician is like a good statesman, for it is the aim of both to alleviate the miseries of earthly existence. Let me hope with you that peace and tranquillity may last forever, and that people may be spared from sickness and wound alike. Do not believe that in expressing this hope any selfish motives enter my mind. Yours respectfully, "Li Hung Chang.

"To His Excellency, Dr. Sato Susamu." Li Hung Chang claims that he never forgot an enemy nor a friend. His letter certainly seems to justify this statement.-Leslie's Weekly.

Ways of Mexican Pickpockets. Two German gentlemen were talking at the corner of First Plateros street, Mexico, just off the entrance of the portal, when suddenly one of them was roughly pushed by a pelado. The German tried to remonstrate, and even made motions with his cane to punch the offender. At this moment his companion felt a stinging pain at the back of his neck. Another pelado had thrown a burning match inside his collar, and naturally made him throw up his hand, and while so doing the pickpocket grabbed the man's watch and chain and ran away, followed by a policeman. The pelado was not caught. The German's timepiece was a silver one, of little value, and what the Teuton felt most keenly was the burning of his

How to Purify Turbid Water.

Turbid water is, in some way as yet insufficiently explained, made clear by the Indian plan of putting a piece of alum into it. The alum appears to unite with the mud, and to form a clayey deposit. Independently of this action it has an astringent effect on organic matters; it hardens them, and they subside to the bottom of the vessel, instead of being diffused in a glairy, viscous state throughout the water. No taste of alum remains in the water, unless it has been used in great excess. Three thimblefuls of alum will clarify a bucketful of turbid water.

MR. VANAMEE'S LETTER

It will be observed by the discerning reader that in his rejoinder to Mr. Low, printed in another column, Mr. Vanamee bases his criticism of that gentleman's conclusions and, his whole argument in this instance, in support of the constitutionality of the Single Election act upon wha, he finds in Section 5, Article 1 of Chapter 681 of the Public Officers' Law, which he in part reproduces.

Mr. Vanamee has twice made use of this quotation in support of his contention, but on neither occasion has he quoted in full. The ARGUS now prints the section in its entirety. that the intelligent reader may him self judge of the relation which the four lines, unquoted by Mr. Van. amee, bear to the whole reading:

"Every officer except a judicial officer, a notary public, a commismioner of deeds and an officer whose term is fixed by the constitution, having duly entered on the duties of his office, shall, unless the office shall terminate or be abolished, hold over and continue to discharge the duties of his office, after the ex piration of the term for which he shall have been choser, until his successor shall be chosen and qualified; BUT AFTER THE EXPIRATION OF SUCH TERM, THE OFFICE SHALL BE DEEMED YACANT FOR THE PURPOSE OF CHOOSING EI9 SUCCESSOR."

The above section is not only queted, word by word, but the punctuation has been strictly followed; and it is to be recollected that in law, even more than in general literature, punctuation governs and controls meaning and interpretation. To be sure, further on in his argument, Mr Vanamee does quote these lines, but the disassociation of the two parts together with the dropping of the word "but," absolutely destroys the meaning and force of the context.

Laws are made for laymen to obey and, therefore, to read and under stand. Their interpretation is no! the special prerogative of lawyers and It is not presumptuous, therefore, for the Argus to say in the absence of any interpretation of the Public Officers' Act by the courts, that it was never intended to and cannot possibly be so strained as to apply to such a condition of affairs as has been created n this city by the enactment of the single election law. To assume the contrary is to assume that the Legislature of 1892 foresaw that subset urs, at John at the Second Presbyter. quent legislatures would pass unconstitutional and, therefore, illegal measures and that provision was being made for such a contingency.

The Public Officers' Act has in contemplation instances of no choice at an election, that is a tle vote, which necessitates a special election and it, therefore, in some instances, clothes the incumbent of an officwith the right to continue to admin ister the duties of that office until his successor is chosen; otherwise an executive office might be left without any one to discharge its functions, or In the case of a representative office, part of the people might be left ucrepresented, and, therefore, subj-cto texation without representation, which is abhorrent to the underlying idea of popular government.

The Public Officers' Act applies only in cases where the people have failed to elect. It never was intended to apply to cases in which the people were prevented from electing. It was never intended to be so construed as to make it the vehicle for a suspension of popular government-"government of the people, by the people, for the people."

It is a well known rule of law that the mention of one thing excludes all others; that when a special provision of doubtful application appears in a statute and a state of affirs is found that is all sufficient to explain the existence of such provision it excludes everything else.

Applying this rule to the quo'ed section of the Public Officers' Act, we find that a failure to elect is a state of affairs that is all sufficient to explain the existence of the section, and that, therefore, it cannot be stretched to cover the abnormal condition created in this city by the single election law. The final words of the quoted section, those printed in small capitale, make it very plain that it waneverintended by this law to deprive the people of the right to choose their public servants. On the contrary it is made very certain that it intended that the people shall exercise that right at the earliest possible moment, and this is another reason why this act cannot be construed so as to bolster up and sustain a measure like the single election law, which robs the people of Middietown of their sovereign right to choose those who shall rule over

THE PHONOGRAPH CONCERT.

Crowded House and a Pine Enter talament.

The Second Presbyterian Church was crowded to the doors, last evening, on the occasion of Prof. Howe's phonograph concert, and all present were well pleased.

Prof. Howe's instrument is far superior to those usually introduced at exhibitions of this kind, and he has a fine collection of musical and literary selections, and gives an excellent programme.

The audience was especially pleased when the instrument repeated the 103d Psalm, which Dr. Beattie had recited in the receiver, a song by Miss Annie Howland, and a cornet duet by Messrs. Arthur Parkins and John Gordon. Having heard the recitation and music as they were g ven to the machine, they were able o judge of the correctness of the reproduction.

"Mrs. Goorge St. John who sang at the Tabor Grand Opera House concert is a comparatively new comer to Denver; she is very poputar in society, where she has made many friends. Mrs. St. John is to sing at the Second Presbyterian Church, Friday evening. March 13, for the benefit of the Heart to Heart Circle of King's

A Rejoinder by Mr. Vanamee to the Optaion of B. F. Law, Esq. My attention has been called to an opinion of Mr. Low published in the newspapers, in which he declares that the city officials are intruders in office and their acts void. He further contends that the public officers' act of 1892 has no application to the case because, as he claims, the local act is unconstitutional and void.

Of course no intelligent layman would be misled by this for a moment. He would perceive at once that if the local act is void, because, as claimed by Mr. Low, it improperly extends the term of the old officers, that creates the very condition which makes the public officers' act applicabie. If the local act is clearly unconstitutional, that constitutes the very emergency which the public officers' act was designed to provide for. The act anticipates, covers and includes all cases of the expiration of term of office, whether the situation arises out of a void statute, a void election or no election at all. It says that the old officer "shall hold over and continue to discharge the duties of his office after the expiration of the term for which he shall have been chosen until his successor shall be chosen and qualified."

Cearly a void statute leaves the situation just where it found it. The argument made by Mr. Low makes no progress toward the conclusion reached by him that the officials are intruders in office. Obcoede, for the sake of the argument, that the act fixes a definite term of extension, the conclusion does not follow. If the local act had expressly provided toat the terms of the old officers should be extended for a definite term of three years, that provision would be void, but the old officers would still hold over and their acts would be valid until their successors are chosen. Is it possible that a void statute can work any such mischiefs and confusion as Mr. Low pictures? Is so, a void statute would be a much more dangerous thing than a valid statute. If this act in question is void, what harm can it do? At the very most and at the very worst, it can only result, in the ordinary case of an omitted election. Will Mr. Low presume to argue that if the electors fail to hold an election at the proper time, the city is thrown into chaos, when the public officers' act not only provides that the old officers shall hold over, but further provides that an "officer so holding over for one or more entire terms shall, for the purpose of choosing his successor, be regarded as having been newly chosen for such terms." thus clearly contemplating and providing for the contingency of several, successive omitted elections? Mr. Low says that the public officers' act only "refers to a holding River, between Port Jervis and Mat- over under a legal statute and not amoras, is a favorite spot for foot under one that is void." On the One of Chr. Hensen's Junket pads. A man was held up on the contrary the public officers' act expressly makes the test of qualification to consist in having once "duly entered on the duties of his office." Does Mr. Low pretend that these officials were not regularly elected originally and that they never entered upon the performance of their duties? They hold over, not under a void statute, but under their orignal election and their original acceptance of the office. How can an officer hold over under a void statute?

The situation is very simple and may be summarized thus: First-The language of the local act in relation to the old officers holding over is a repetition of the general provisions of law and may be treated as surplusage. It auccessfully obviates the objection as to fixing adefinite term, but even if it does not and if the old officers do not hold over under it, then:

Second - The old officers hold over under those provisions of the public officers act which have already been fully referred to This act contains the further provision that "after the expiration of such term, the office shall be deemed vacant for the purpose of choosing his successor." It follows that if the citizens do not want to wait until the general elestion, then:

Third-The citizens may apply to the Governor under the provisions of the general election law for a special election. If this is ordered and held, then the successors of the old officers thus elected would take office and hold it until the officers elected at the regular election would be entitled to succeed them.

Mr. Low says that upon the expiration of their terms the old officers are intruders. The public officers' law says that after the expiration of their terms it is their right an ; their duty to continue in the discharge of their official duties and not, by abandoning them, to create the very confusion which he affec's to deplore as the result of the recent law.

Mr. Low says that they hold over under a void statute. The public officers' law say that they hold over by virtue of a valid election under which they originally entered upon the discharge of their duties.

Mr. Low says that their offices are now vacant for all purposes. The public officers' law says that they are deemed vacant only for the purpose of choosing their successors.

Mr. Low says that their official acts are void and the public affairs of the city thus thrown into disorder, The public officers' law was designed to avert this very misfortune and it great World's Fair in Chicago, 1893. to effectuate the wholesome, salutary

THE TERMS OF THE CITY OFFICERS and beneficent object for which it was enacted.

I shall not pursue the subject fur ther. I have made this rejoinder lest silence might be miscoustrued. My business is in the courts, not in the newspapers. I prefer to argue to a tribunal clothed with power to decide. If Mr. Low thinks that he is right, let him propose to the city attorney and the Common Council to lay an assessment. If the Common Cluacil accepts the proposition the city attorney and Mr. Low can argue the question before the five eminent Judges compes ng the Appellate D: vision of the Supreme Court upon the first Monday of April and it will very soon be determined who is right. WILLIAM VANAMEE.

AN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

The Store and Dwelling of Angus D, Terailliger, on North Street, Badly Damaged-A Very Stubborn Fire-Narrow Escape of an Adjaining Prop-

Angus D. Terwilliger, proprietor of a grocery store at No. 220 North st eet, and who resides in spartments over the store, was awakened shortly after 3 o'clock, this morning, by a emell of smoke, which filled his eleoping apartment.

He groped his way through the blinding smoke to the stairway, and found that the lower portion of the rear end of the building was a mass of flames.

Mr. Terwilliger sent in an alarm from box 15, at the corner of North street and Low avenue, and the fire department responded quickly.

Eagle Hose Company was first on the scene, and soon had two steams on the building, the upper part of which, by that time, was enveloped in flames.

The fire started in a rear annex, which Mr. Terwilliger used as a bakery. Oxing to the fact that the rear end of the main building had been filled with brick, the fire ate its wav through the outside of the structure to the second story, and from there to the attic, which was filled with light inflammable material.

The firemen found the fire to be a very stubborn one, and it required several hours hard work before the fire was extinguished.

Mr. Terwilliger is at a loss to account for the fire. He claims that everything was left in proper shape when he retired. His wife and child are away on a visit and he was alone in the house. Mr. Terwil iger has been unfortunate in regard to fires, this being the third time he has been burned out. The last time was several years ago, when his house on Beacon Terrace was burned while the family was attending an entertainment down

Mr. Martin Henderson, the well knows junkman, who resides next door to Mr. Terwilliger, had a narrow escape from a total loss, and but for the prompt action of the fire department would to-day be mourning the fact that the insurance companles have refused him a policy. Owing to the nature of Mr. Henderson's business and the fact that he continually has a stock of old rags stored in the rear of his building, the insurance people will not write a policy for him.

The property was insured for $3,900 on building and stock. Of this $1,300 was in the Commerce Insurance Co., of Albany, and $1,600 in the Rochester German, of Rochester, written by Combs & Wilbur, and $1,000 in the Hanover Insurance Company, by Case & Taylor.

A Blizzard Coming—Will Reach Here

A cyclonic storm, which originated in the Gulf of Mexico, is traveling rapidly northward and, since the tems erature is low enough, it is predicted that as soon as the storm parses north of Virginia it will turn from rain to snow. The storm is expected to reach here early to-morrow morning. The great blizzard of 1888 came on March 12 b, and it would be a strange coincidence if on the anniversary of that unprecedented storm we should have another like unto it.

British High Commissioner to the Cape of Good Hope.

Now that South Africa is in serious trouble, it is by no means improbable that one man in that country will be called upon to rearrange matters. This nan is Sir Hercules Robinson, ex-governor of Cape Colony, and now chief commissioner of the Cape of Good Hope. Sir Hercules is a tried hand at settling disputes in the colonies of Great Britain, and his success as a diplomat and agent in such matters during the past 36 years has won every possible honor from the crown. In 1890, recognizing his great services as a preserver of British power abroad, the queen made him a baronet. He was appointed to his present position in 1895. He is the second son of Admiral Hercules Robinson, was born in 1824 and was educated at the Royal Military college, Sandhurst. He was commissioned in the 87th fusileers, but retired in 1846 to enter the civil service in Ireland. Since that time he has served in varous gubernatorial capacities in the colonies and always with the best success from the English point of view. He was made president of Monserrat in 1854, lieutenant governor of St. Christophers in 1855 and governor of Hong Kong in 1859. In 1865 he was governor of Ceylon and in 1872 governor of New South Wales. I wo years later he was sent to the Fiji islands to settle the dispute between the native power and the British government. He secured the unconditional cession of the islands, annexed them to the empire and raised the British flag there. In 1878 he was made governor of New Zealand, and in 1880 governor of the Cape of Good Hope. In 1881 he settled the affairs of the Transvaal, but not with such brilliant success for his government as attended him in other efforts. In 1885 he was appointed governor of British Bechuanaland, and a year later was the commissioner who examined into the trouble in Mauritius. He retired in 1886, and last spring was given his present place as successor to Sir Henry Loch. If Sir Hercules amicably settles the present row in the Transvaal he will have, achieved the greatest of his many triumphs in diplomacy.

HOWARD W. BYERS.

Biography of the Speaker of the Iowa House of Representatives.

Howard Webster Byers, the speaker of the Iowa house of representatives. is a young man who has made his way well in the world. He was born in 1856 in a log cabin near Woodstock, a little town in Wisconsin. Soon after his birth his parents removed to Highland, Wis., where they lived during the war. In 1874 they moved to Iowa, and young Byers went to work on a farm. Two years later he and two young friends started with a mule team for the Black hills. They were overtaken by the winter at Dodge City and returned to Ne? braska City, where they traded in mules. He remained two years in Nebraska City and then went to Shelby, Ia., taught school, studied law and was admitted to the bar by the Iowa sun preme court in 1888. Grandfather of All Lobsters.

The largest lobster ever eaught on the ser coast of North America crept into a basket trap set for his reception by John D. Barnes off the coast of Cape. Cod. The monster was a fraction over two feet in length from eyes to the tipof his tail, and about 16 inches in circumference in the thickest part of the body. Each of the giant's claws was 18 inches in length; joining to the body at a place where they were 15 inches apart. Ordinary lobsters weigh from one to eight pounds; this old settler tipped the beam at exactly 23 pounds and two ounces. In the fall of 1885 a. lobster weighing 211/2 pounds was caught in Massachusetts bay, but nothing approaching the Barnes eatch for size has ever before been reported by

Once Used, they are Always in Favor. Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, in-digestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, pim-ples, blotches, eruptions, boils, constina-tion, piles, fistula and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequaled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity, with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indirection. constipation, piles and indigestion.

NEW ENGLAND CUSTOMS.

City People Among the Country Folk of the East. On moonshiny evenings dwellers in small cities practice driving out for supper to some farmhouse, where the summer boarder has been followed by large parlor and dining-room. The traditional repast of cold meats, brown bread, "riz bread," mince ple and doughnuts, made more toothsome by coffee brewed from kernels fresh ground in a fragrant mortar, and made velvet smooth to the taste by cream skimmed from the pan shortly before using, is gone. Cream is not quite out of date, but the coffee roasted the morning beforehand in an iron basin set on live embers drawn from under a lazily chairing back-log, "comes up among the missing." Concerning that we hear only the dreary croak of Poe's raven, "Nevermore." Their menu of oysters, solads, ices, and confectioner's cake, shows just how far New England has gone down into the valley of humiliation on the food line. Home and neighborhood life and sports feel the mutations that close settlement and increasing push from outside always bring, but home holds its sacred place as the holiest spot on earth outside the temples of God Home, church, school, the olden trinity, made the new helps and methods possible, and dominate everywhere. Youth and hope and love walk in and out the doors as of yore. Latchstrings are ever out, and welcomes, warm and hearty as those of a hundred years ago, greet kindred, friend, or stranger. There abide still among the hills the ancient esteem of sterling character, the primitive love of fair play, and, where outside men have not done their worst the time-honored hate of bribes and bribe-takers. The old-time repression and shyness linger still, as well as an interest in everybody and for everybody. Borrowing, lending, and "swapping," together with delightful "neighboring," go on among farmer folk. Women take their work and walk a mile to spend a day; perhaps even patchwork appears once in awhile on state occasion. The dear sweet spice of gossip is current yet, though tittletattle may be fallen into shade; but so have knitting sheaths and snuff boxes. Apple bees, spelling schools and quiltings are now rare as a piece of homemade tansy cheese, but away back from rail and telegraph they flourish something like those in elder times, but spelling schools have lost the quain; custom of speaking pieces, and apples are no more pared by hand or homemade parer.-Eliza Nelson Plair, in Chautauquan.

GOLD BRICKS.

Robbery of Life as Well as Money.

One of the Worst of Modern Swindles-Stones for Sufferers Who Want Bread.

If a doctor should prescribe candy and other sweets for each young girl who came under his professional care, he would probably be called, by these patients at least, "an elegant doctor." If your child was desperately ill, and you knew that only some nauseous mixture would effect a cure, you certainly would not hesitate to give it, simply because of its taste. Suppose the druggist would think only of pleasing your child and should give you some mixture of honey, only labeling it with the name of the disagreeable remedy! What would you think of such a man? You would say he was willing too risk the life of the child simply for the sake of pleasing.

We all know what wonderful power cod-liver oil has over a number of diseases. It is also well known that no human skill can sempletely remove all its peculiar taste. Yet there are a few unscrupulous manufacturers who are so anxious the have a perfectly "tasteless" mixture, that they will leave out the cod-liver oil. They label their bottles as some "tasteless codliver oil," and yet there is not a particle of oil present. That is why it is tasteless. They believe you have confidence in their statements, and so are perfectly willing to deceive you if only they can sell their goods. Is such a course anything but a criminal one? A perfectly tasteless preparation of cod-liver oil cannot be made. We have been making emulsions for twenty years, and we can speak with authority. The nearest approach to it is found in Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites. This preparation contains the very best cod-liver oil with nearly all the fishy taste removed. Only a trace of it remains: enough to be detected, but not enough to make the mixture disagreeable even to the most sensitive stomach. This is why sick people find no trouble in taking Scott's Emulsion, and it also explains why so many persons recover their health under its use.

Nearly twenty-five years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion discovered a process of emulsifying or partially digesting cod-liver oil. so as to remove from it almost entirely its obnoxious fishy taste and smell, and at the same time increasing its food and remedial properties. They found also that by combining the Hypophosphites with it that they added still further to its power. Since that time thousands of imitations have come into the field, but the original has never been equalled in its great strengthening, healing and flesh producing powers. The medical profession have obtained results from it probably unequalled by any other remedial agent.

INTERESTING CEREMONY AT THE ARMORY, LAST NIGHT.

Marksmen and sharpsheeters Who Have Qualified Presented With Badges - Dress Parade and Review Witnessed by a Large Crowd of Spectators-Dr. Talcett's Presentation Address.

The large drill hall of the Armory of the 24th Separate Company was crowded with spectators, last evening, the occasion being the presentation of meials and badges won Ly the members of the company, who qualified as marksmen and snarpshooters on the outdoor rifle range, last season.

Fully 500 people were present to hear the address by Dr. Talcott, who presented the badges, and to witness the review and dress parade of the

The company paradel in battalion formation, of three companies, Captain McIntyre acting Major, Lieut. L. S Stivers Acting Adjutant, Sergeant E. C. Strack Acting Sergeans Mejor, Second Lieutentant J. D. Stivers commanding the first company, Surgeon M. C. Ashley commanding the third company and First Sergeant A. L. Decker commanding the second, or color company.

After the review, Dr. Talcott was escorted to the centre of the drill was as follows:

Members of the 24th Separate Company. Ladies and Gentlemen:

It becomes my pleasant duty to present a few badges to the prize winners of your company, this evening, to wit, a ten-year service badge to yourhonored commander. Captain McIntyre; fifty marksman's badges for qualifying skill; and a badge to be known as the "Talcott Trophy," which is to be worn for one year by the soldier who makes the best record in sharpshooting at a duly appointed contest.

We come here tonight not only to present badges, but to witness the evolutions of the company in the new manual of arms. We come also to enjoy the blesslngs and benefits of this beautiful and stately armory; and we come to avail ourselves of those social privileges which spring from heart to heart when soldier meets soldier under favorable and delightful circumstances. When we tell our friends tomorrow morning about this inspiring event, we may begin the recita!

" There was a sound of revelry by might."

We have not only a fine array of solthe ladies likewise are with us. God bless them for coming: and now we offer

.Here's to the ladies:

Whose eyes, like the stars, are the windows of Frough which we catch glimpses of holiest bliss, Whose hearts are the strongholds of truest affec-And whose lips are expressly for doctors to kiss

This is our usual way of rendering it; but tonight, under the circumstances, we will change the last line as follows: And whose hips are expressly for soldiers to kiss t

That last line however, is like a limited ticket-it is "good for this day only." The soldiers may be called away to war, but the doctors are like the poor-you have them with you always! I am both a soldier and a doctor: therefore I shall not get left in any event!

It seems appropriate just here that we should say aword or two about badges; and likewise a word or two about armories: and finally we shall speak directly to the militiamen who constitute the "congregation therein assembled" of the armory.

Badges are decorations of honor which have in all times past been bestowed upon shose who have achieved, for the good of aumanity, some glorious or daring deeds. Thus the world has known of the badge of the Golden Fleece, the budge of the Roman Eagle; the German badge of the Iron Cross; the French budge of the Legion of Honor, and the Eng sh badge of the Star and Garter. All these were designed by kings and potentates for the purpose of stimulating and rewarding heroic and tourageous acts upon fields of danger, and there are other badges.

Sir Philip Sidney won the badge of sternal nobility -an invisible emblem of nonor that is stamped upon every chivalde human heart-because he gave a cup of cold water to a dying comrade upon the field of battle instead of drinking it timself. That was a soldier's act of generosity and unselfishness-natural and grae to life in these days we have, in military sircles, chiefly the brige of the Grand Army of the lo pub., which is worn by the survivors of our lest war. A Mississippi colonel, who fought on the Confederate side, told me last winter that the most honored badge in all the south today is the budge of the Gran' Army of the Republic. We have likewise the hadges of numerous societies and civic organizations which have been devised for the happiness and the interests of mankind. Tonight we increase the number of badges to be worn by our fellows, and we hope in that way to argument the sum of human happiness. Just here it seems proper that we should speak of the American armory as a center of education and discipline and protection for young men.

The school days of the young are quickly ended and the youthful graduates soon find their way from classic halls offices and shops, and stores and manufactories, where their energies are exhausted in efforts to attain an honorable living. When the toils of the day are ended, then amusements or recreations of some kind bells is an allurement to some, alas! how from past history, and present indications few! The fascinations of the cun in the that the Great Jehovah of Justice has gilded saloon, and the gay festivities of the ball room constitute the attractions of many others. There are dangers in these paths of dissipation; there are perilous exhaustions in the long-drawn and highstrung amusements of the present day. Moreover, there is no purpose of future good in the "giddy mazes of the waitz," or the feverish strains of the dancing hall, but in the American armory, young men may find that enjoyment which results in the full development of muscular activity, and the keen and skillful use of every mental power coupled with a purpose. In the armory you may find health, and strength, and growth and enjoyment, and protection against unwise dissipation; and, above all, your enjoyment here is combined with the lofty and noble purpose of preparing yourselves to become your country's defenders in the hour of danger or need. What a grand and exalted purpose is that which impels you to exercise and toll in the armory; and the true happiness of life comes always through the inspiration of a proper and enthusiastic motive.

The Greeks were proud of their achievements in out-door athletics in the field of severe muscular exertion. The Roman soldier chewed raw wheat as he marched, and conquered the world by brute force. The Greeks and the Romans have had their day, and have become simply a memory in the history of the world. The most perfect product of the American armory is or should be a soldier and a man of full development, both physically and mentally, and morally. He is a better and riper product of human progress than either the Greek or the Roman. The armory is a "post-graduate school" where young men are trained not only into a soldierly manhood, but into an honorable citizenship that represents the virtues and the glories of the home, the community, the state and the nation.

In my judgment the teachings of the armory, if rightly conducted, are among the noblest that can excite interest in the hearts and brains of men. The American armory teaches the better ideals of manhood; it teaches self-reliance and selfcontrol; it teaches skill and care in the exercise of all the fe ulties of the mind and body; it teaches respect for liberty and law; it teaches protection of life and property against the assaults of evervinvader; it teaches patriotism; it teaches nobility and honesty in all the relations of life, and a quick, solaierly sensitive ness that repels or rejects everything which is wrong or dishonorable; it teaches the power of moral, and intellectual, as well as physical force. Brains, not muscles, will conquer in the future conflicts of the nations, and the ages.

All honor to the teachings of the Ameridiers and civilians in this audience, but | can armory! It is here that the "flower of American youth" are trained until they become soldiers and patriots, and above all else, true and noble men. It seems to me that the work which is now being achieved by the American armory is responsive to that blessed and noble prayer of Dr. Holland's:

"God give us men, a time like this demands Great hearts, strong minds, true faith and ready mands:

Men whom the lust of office cannot kill; Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy; den who nossess oninions and a will-

Men who can stand before a demagogue, And damn his treacherous flatteries without Tall men, sauburut, who live above the fog, In public duty, and in private thinking;

For while the rabble, with its thumb-worn creeds.
Its large professions, and its little deeds,
Mingle in selfish stiffe, lo! freedom wices.

Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps. When such men as those who are described by Dr. Holland, and who are now being matured in the armories of our land, shall come to the front in all affairs of the State and Nation, then we shall have truth and honor in politics, and honesty and safety in the councils of our statesmen.

When the armory has fulfilled its mission, then will our Nation's flag be respected and revered in all quarters of the earth;—that flag which is the most beautiful fing that ever dallied with a summer's breeze, or swept triumphant above the heads of victorious armies upon the imminent brink of battle.

The American soldier, the product of the American armory, should not only be straight and strong and skillful in the art of shooting, but he should likewise be a man of affairs, interested in the fates and the fortunes, and the great possibilities ofhuman existence. He should seek to know something of the crowning problems of life, he should seek to establish himself upon the everlasting rock of truth and its kindred principles.

Now I do not propose to weary you by reviewing the whole history of the race, but I wish to state, in conclusion, a few things which I think I know, and which should be recognized and appreciated by every one, both soldier and civilian.

I shall not tell you all I don't know; that would make a speech far too long for this occasion. I do not know much about the greatunderlying and mysterious principles which are supposed to govern human conduct from an aesthetic standpoint, but I do know this simple and homely fact: ' Honesty is the best policy " in public as well as in private life. I do not know much about ancient or modern law, but I do know that the old-fashioned Ten Commandments are the best laws that have yet been devised for the government of man. I do not know much about the homiletics of religion, nor the mandates of Lycurgus, nor the sedate quibbles of Blackstone; but I do know that the best rule for all the world today is the Golden Rule. I do not know much about the merits of the dispute between British Guiana and American Venezi, ia for am I quite sure about the corrections are sought after. The music of church of the Schomburgk line; but I do know.

written, with imperishable fingers in letters of living fire, along the blue curtains of the universe, the final and lasting doom of that strong nation which tramples in scorn upon the weak. I do not know much about constitutional limitations or state rights, but I do know that this be loved nation of ours is safest and strongest when you teach all the boys and girls to sing the Star-Spangled Banner and to shout or heRed, White and Blue. Ido not know just when the millenium will dawn, but I think I know that it will surely come when men shall put away from their hearts that monstrous and miserable creed: " Every man for himself, and the Devil take the hindmost;' and when they shall substitute in its stead that more blessed, and benign, and brotherly creed: " Each one of us for every other, and God for us all."

Soldiers of the 24th Separate Company: You will, I trust, wear these badges, which are presented to you this evening with credit and satisfaction to yourselves and with the honor and glory to the or ganization to which you belong. And I ven ture also to express the hope that you wil a'l be true to the impulses and purposes and patriotisms of the great work which you have espoused-that of training yourselves to become both honorable citizens of the commonwealth and successful defenders of the American home the American nation, the American con stitution and the American flag.

At the conclusion of his remarks, those who were entitled to receive badges were called to the front and centre, and each in turn was presented with his badge. A dress parade then followed which concluded the ceremonies of the evening. An impromptu dance followed, music being furnished by volunteers at the piano.

THE WATER BOARD'S RECEIPTS.

More Than Doubled in the Last Ten Years-Reasons Therefore.

The amounts received for water during the last ten years, by the Board of Water Commissioners, are 1886, $13,963 31; 1887, $16 478 66; 1888 $17.872.46; 1889 $16.383.25; 1890. $18.490 27: 1891, $21 945 98: 1892, $19.-328.23; 1893, $20 548 49; 1894, $28, 113.76; 1895, $32.700 71. The great increase during 1894 and

1895 was due to the following causes: First-Introduction of a system of inspection which laid bare the fact that 49 consumers were paying nothing at all for water, and that 40 per per cent. of all consumers were not paying for all uses of water. Second-The introduction of meters in all hotels, saloons, livery stables and factories.

Third-Making uniform rates to all in the same class.

Fourth-More thorough collections, including back taxes. The revenue of 1896 may be expected to be about $31,000.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Annual Meeting, Last Night—Tao Clerk's Report on the Work of the Year-Vital statistics of the Year.

The Board of Health held its en nual meeting, last night, and reorganized for the ensuing year, by electing all the old officers it cluding the hold-overs. The board is as follows: President ex-officio, Mayor W. K. Stansbury, President, C. C. Foss; Registrar and Clerk, F. A. R. Pronk; Sanitary Inspector, C. C. Foss; Health Officer, Dr. W. I. Purdy. The other members of the Board are Dr. W. J. Nelson, V. N. Powell and F. W. Elliott.

The clerk's report showed that the Board had held ten regular and two special meetings during the year. One hundred complaints of various characters had been received and investigated.

Thirty cases of contagious diseases were reported as follows: Measies 3. Diphtheria 14, Scarlatina 4, Scarlet Fever 7, Typhoid Fever 2.

The total number of deaths was 185, as egainst 215 in the preceeding year. Of these forty-five were from contagious diseases as follows: Consumption 26, Pneumonia 13, Diphther:a 3, Typhoid fever 2, Grip 1. Deaths from acuident or as a result alcoholism were 14.

Interments; in Hillside Cemetery 106, St. Joseph's 24, Phillipsburgn 8 There were 244 births, of which 112 ware females and 132 males. Of these but two were colored children.

One hundred and twenty-five marriages were reported.

" I have never had a day's sickness in my life," said a middle-aged man, the other day.

"What a comfort it would be." eighs some poor invalid, " to be in his place for a year or two." Ye: half of the invalids we see might be just as healthy as he, if they would only take proper care of themselves, eat proper food-and digest it.

It's so strange that such simple things are overlooked by those who want health. Food makes health.

It makes strength-and strength

wards of sickness. The man who had never been sick was strong because | he always digested his food, and you could become the same by helping your stomach to work as well as his. It will make you strong and healthy by making the food you eat make you fat. Try Shaker Digestive Cordial. All

THE STUDIOUS GIRL.

An Interesting Letter From Young Ladies' College.

Race Between the Sexes for Education. Health Impaired by Incessant Study.

The race between the sexes for education is to-day very close. Ambitious girls work incessantly over their studies, and are often brought to a halt, through having sacrificed the physical to the mental. Then begin those ailments that must be removed at once, or they will produce constant suffering. Headache, dizziness, faintness, slight vertigo, pains in the back and loins, irregularity, loss of sleep and appetite, nervousness and blues, with lack of confidence; these are positive signs that women's arch enemy is at hand. The following letter was received by Mrs. Pinkham in May, one month after the young lady had first written, giving symptoms, and asking advice. She was ill and in great distress of mind, feeling she would not hold out till graduation, and the doctor had advised her to go home. College, Mass.

You dear Woman:---I should have written to you before, but you said wait a month. We are. taught that the days of miracles are past. Pray what is my case? I have taken the Vegetable Compound faithfully, and obeyed you implicitly and. am free from all my ills. I was a very, very sick girl. Am keeping well up in my class, and hope to do you and myself credit at graduation. * * My gratitude cannot find expression in words. Your sincere friend, MARY -P. S. Some of the other girls are now using the Compound. It benefits them all.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only safe, sure and effectual remedy in such cases, as it removes the cause, purifies and invigorates the system, and gives energy and vitality.
